

How to Talk to Your Parents About Retirement Living

Brownbag Lunch Series

Noon to 1:00 p.m.

at the

Landon Center on Aging, Room 200

June 6, 2007

Presenter: Cathy Borgman

Caring for your aging parents is something you hope you will be able to handle when the time comes, but it is the last thing you want to think about until then. Convincing elderly loved ones to move from the comfort of the home they've known for many years into a retirement community can be one of the toughest hurdles for families to accomplish.

When should you talk to your parents? Now. Even if they won't need to move right away it is better to get started early, but regardless of where you are in this process, our goal is "it will be easier after today."
