

SPIRITUALITY AND HEALTHCARE

ETHICS & MEDICINE: AN OPEN DIALOGUE BETWEEN THE COMMUNITY & HEALTHCARE PROFESSIONALS

NOON FREE LUNCH
PROGRAM 12:30 TO 1:30 P.M.
LANDON CENTER ON AGING
ROOM 200

July 11, 2007

You have just been diagnosed with a very serious illness. Your doctor has recommended that you be referred to a specialist and a chaplain. Your doctor then asks if you want her to pray with you. Is it ethical for physicians to act as pastoral caregivers? Many physicians think it is inappropriate to discuss spiritual matters with their patients, do you? Well designed studies generally revealing a beneficial relation of religious commitment, practices, and attitudes to patient well-being are emerging in several clinical areas. Come join us for a discussion of the ethics of spirituality in healthcare.
